

Schreiner MediPharm, a Germany-based printer of pharmaceutical labels, has won a FINAT Award, a World Label Association Award, a German Packaging Award and the Baxter Award for its packaging innovations.

Schreiner MediPharm won the first place award in the screen printing category for its Japanese syringe label at the European FINAT competition. It was then selected by the FINAT Association to enter the global competition for the World Label Association Award which Schreiner MediPharm also won in the screen line category. The syringe label provides safety features including a scaled, transparent window, which allows the content of the syringe to be seen and a detachable label section for documentation to be applied to a patient's medical records.

Click here for the full story on labels and labeling.

More IV news at IVTEAM

