

Abstract:

We describe a case of central venous catheter infection and bacteremia caused by Bosea thiooxidans, which has not been previously described in the literature. Bosea spp. is a gram-negative bacterium that has been isolated from hospital water supplies and may become an important cause of nosocomial infections.

Reference:

Skipper, C., Ferrieri, P. and Cavert, W. (2019) Bacteremia and central line infection caused by Bosea thiooxidans. IDCases. November 28th. doi: 10.1016/j.idcr.2019.e00676. eCollection 2020.