

We identified substantial variation in characteristics and resources of pediatric OPAT practices” Banerjee et al (2015).

Abstract:

We conducted a survey of pediatric members of the Emerging Infections Network regarding outpatient parenteral antimicrobial therapy (OPAT) practices and clinical decision making about OPAT initiation. We identified substantial variation in characteristics and resources of pediatric OPAT practices. Opportunities to improve oversight of OPAT in children should be explored.

Reference:

Banerjee, R., Beekmann, S.E., Doby, E.H., Polgreen, P.M., Rathore, M.H. and Hersh, A.L. (2015) Outpatient Parenteral Antimicrobial Therapy Practices Among Pediatric Infectious Diseases Consultants: Results of an Emerging Infections Network Survey. Journal of the Pediatric Infectious Diseases Society. 3(1), p.85-8.

DOI: 10.1093/jpids/pis137.

Thank you to our partners for supporting IVTEAM